RESEARCH GRANTS WON IN COMPETITION

As principal applicant:

- 2004: Funding for 12 months at 75% from University of Gothenburg.
- Funding from Swedish Foundation for International Cooperation in Research and Higher Education (STINT), covering 12 man-months at 100% plus moving expenses while visiting Roberts Schuman Center for Advanced Studies, European University, Florence. Grant won in cross-disciplinary competition with applicants from history, sociology, economics etc.
- 2005: Awarded a “Pro Futuris Fellow” grant by the Bank of Sweden Tercentenary Foundation (RJ) for project on “Electoral Accountability in European Welfare States.” Funding at 75 % research time and travel expenses during four years. It is awarded to “exceptionally promising young scholars in the humanities and social sciences.” As a result of the nature of the nomination process, the grant was essentially won in competition with all PhDs graduating in the last five years in all social science and humanities fields in Sweden. Only seven grants were awarded Pro Futura fellows divide their time between a home department, The Swedish Collegium for Advanced Study, Uppsala, and spend one year abroad. The programme is co-funded by STINT.
- 2009: Swedish Council for Working Life and Social Research (FAS) gave 1,7 million SEK for project on “The Welfare State in European Election Campaigns: A Political-Contextual Data Set” This allowed me to employ a research assistant at half-time for two years, helping with a major data collection. Also, it contains research funding for a colleague in Gothenburg.
- 2010: RJ gave another three years of Pro Futura research at 75% funding based on achieved results during the four first years, together with an assessment of the new research project “Constructing and neglecting interests in mediatized welfare states.”
- 2012: Norwegian Research Council gave 9,6 million NOK for project “Support for the Affluent Welfare State: Interests, Fairness, and Social Capital in Context.” This project employs five senior scholars and one research assistant over 2012-15.

- 1998: Dissertation project funded by a grant from FAS allowing three years of research at 75% plus a major data collection. My dissertation adviser Dr. Maria Oskarson was fronted as the main applicant, but I conceived and wrote the application and carried out all research and data collection within this project (see my book, “The Personal and the Political”)
- 2002: RJ and FAS jointly gave approx. 22 million SEK to the six-year research program “The Political Sociology of the Welfare State” (main applicant: professor Stefan Svallfors, Umeå). - Successful application for space in the 2016 wave of the European Social Survey (30 survey items in 20+ countries). (with Wim van Oorschot and Bart Meuleman (KU Leuven), Tim Reeskens (University of Amsterdam), and Christian Staerke (University of Geneva)).

TEACHING: GENERAL

- I have taught at all levels in political science at University of Gothenburg. All in all, my experience amounts to about 2650 clock hours of overall pedagogic work, preparation etc.
- About 60 percent of these hours were done at the (equivalent of) master level. About 15 percent each has been done at the bachelor and the PhD level, respectively.
- Passed all three of University of Gothenburg's required pedagogical courses: "Högskolepedagogik 1", "Högskolepedagogik 2" and "Högskolepedagogik 3 (HPE 101, 102, 103); 15 högskolepoäng, which equals roughly 10 weeks of full-time work).
- Two-day course in "Scientific tutoring" offered by University of Gothenburg.
- One-day course on "pedagogic goal-setting" ("lärandemål") and the Bologna process.
- Apart from courses I organized myself (see below) I have also lectured in courses organized by colleagues. Reoccurring topics for such lectures are Welfare State Development, Political Communication, German Politics, Introduction to Swedish Politics, Introduction to SPSS, and Causal Analysis.

TEACHING: MASTERS AND BACHELORS THESES

- Advisor of about 10 masters/bachelors dissertations
- Advisor of about 25 five-week theses ("b-uppsatser").
- Long-standing member of the department's "examiners group" which examine, grade, and chair masters/bachelor's thesis defences.
- External examiner of masters theses, University of Bergen

TEACHING: COURSE ORGANIZATION AND DEVELOPMENT

- In cooperation with Bengt Johansson at Department of Mass Communication, I developed, coordinated, and taught much of a ten-week cross-disciplinary course in English on "Citizens, Politicians and the Media: Evaluating Democratic Processes." (SF2222). This course was in turn based on a four-week course on "Public Opinion and Democracy" that I gave 2001-2008.
- Developed, coordinated, and taught much of a ten-week masters course on "Political Analysis" (SK2121). This course gave an advanced birds-eye overview of the main perspectives on politics found in various parts of political science.
- Coordinated (and taught parts of) masters level four-week course on "Statistical analysis" (with Henrik Oscarsson, 2000-2001).
- Coordinated "Introduction to thesis-writing" at bachelor level in 2005. This included giving lectures on academic writing as well as helping students find suitable topics and advisors.
- At Gothenburg, I have taken an active part in the department's pedagogic evaluation system. This has several components. First, course-givers always write retrospective reports after each completed course. These form the basis for periodic peer-review by colleagues and student representatives. I have participated in such evaluation processes both as course-giver for courses mentioned above and as evaluator (evaluating ten-week course on methodology at the master's level).

TEACHING: PHD LEVEL

- I have served as supervisor (main or assistant) for altogether six PhD students. Three have graduated so far and all have gainful academic employment (tenure or tenure track positions).
- I am currently main supervisor for two PhD students (one at Gothenburg and one at University of Oslo).

DATA SETS

- Part of a five-person team designing a "welfare state module" for the 2016 wave of the European Social Survey (30 survey items in 20+ countries). (with Wim van Oorschot and Bart Meuleman (KU Leuven), Tim Reeskens (University of Amsterdam), and Christian Staerke (University of Geneva)).
- Co-principal investigator for a 2014-15 two-wave panel study on welfare state attitudes and social capital in Norway (6000 respondents in about 60 selected municipalities/urban districts). The data are collected in cooperation with TnS Gallup's standing web panel combined with new recruitment of strategic groups. A smaller version of the same two-wave panel has been fielded in Germany, cooperating with YouGov and Prof. Achim Goerres, University of Duisburg-Essen.
- Co-primary investigator with Henrik Oscarsson conducting web-based five wave panel surveys during the 2002 and 2006 Swedish election campaigns (non-random sample of about 1000 e-mailaddresses). These data appear in "Learning from Politics?" and "Claiming Blame and Giving Credit?" and "Informed Performance Evaluation")
- Collected primary survey data (about two pages in a mail survey questionnaire) in the 1999 West Sweden SOM survey, as well as in the 1999 European Parliamentary Election Study (three questions in a face-to-face interview). My dissertation data form the empirical basis for The Personal and the Political, as well as in my various publications with Bo Rothstein.

- Designed questions for the 2002 Swedish Election Study, and the 2003 Euro Referendum Study (see Kampen om Euron).
- Member of The European Voter Group the purpose of which was twofold. First, building on previous efforts by ICORE (International Committee for Comparative Electoral Research), the project compiled national election studies from the six European countries with sufficiently long series of election studies. The group identified the most important theoretical concepts as well as corresponding national-level variables that are comparable enough in a cross-country setting. Zentralarchiv (ZA) in Cologne has now made the data sets easily available for researchers. Second, the group produced a book which studies changes in electoral behaviour in Western Europe during the last 50 years. Edited by Jaques Thomassen, University of Twente, the book was published by Oxford UP in 2005.
- QoG Social Policy Dataset (with Marcus Samanni, Jan Teorell, and Bo Rothstein). This dataset is meant to promote cross-national comparative research on social policy output and its correlates, with a special focus on connections between social policy, quality of government, political actors and institutions, and public opinion. This combination is unique among the major available cross-national data sets in political science. Specifically, it compiles a number of freely available data sources, including aggregated public opinion data. The data contain some 900 variables spanning 40 countries and the time period 1946-2007
- Previous member of Quality of Government Institute's data steering committee maintaining and developing the Institute's various data sets (see www.qog.pol.gu.se)
